How to cover up cables that extend beyond the cable tray

Overview

Fortunately, there's a simple and effective solution: cable raceways, also known as wall cord covers or surface raceways. bunching up the cables together with zip ties or velcro or whatever GOES A LOOOOONG WAY to making it look and feel neater. Once you've got that, you may consider routing it along the frame of the desk, or cable rails as was mentioned in another comment. Cable covers and protectors are essential tools for organizing, protecting, and safely managing cables and wires in various environments. From homes to industrial sites, these solutions help prevent trip hazards and cable damage.
